PHILADELPHIA, November 27.-The University of Pennsylvania and Cornell foot ball elevens met today on Franklin Field in their annual gridiron battle. Since 1893 Pennsylvania and Cornell have met annually in foot ball, and during that period the Ithaca boys have won only one game, that of last year. But Capt. Warner was sanguine of victory when his team trotted on the field today. He said his players were the excavation of a channel about seven not so badly injured as the reports indicate | miles in length. The original depth through and the way the New York state lads went through signals seemed to bear out his statement. The Pennsylvania eleven was in the best physical condition. The members of the team who have been spending the last week at Mount Pocono reached this city last night. Coach Williams said all the players were in the pink of condi-

CHICAGO VS. WISCONSIN.

Badgers Favorites in Betting at Marshal Field-Fine Weather.

CHICAGO. November 27 .- Although both Chicago and Wisconsin are out of the western championship race, more than 8,000 partisan rooters for the maroon and the cardinals braved the wintry weather at Marshal Field today to cheer on Stagg's and King's elevens. A slight fall of snow during the night spread over the gridiron, yet when workmen had raked the field it was seen to be dry and fast. Chicago presented no hospital list, as it did when overwhelmed by Michigan. All of the maroons were in good physical condition. Of Phil King's badgers, Vanderboom was lame, making it seem necessary to hold Freshman Marsh in readiness for much of the work in his place. Capt. Juneau, although none too strong, was ready for the fray. Wisconsin ruled the favorite in the light betting before the game.

BIG CROWD AT ANN ARBOR To Witness the Game Between Michigan and Minnesota.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., November 27 .- With both sides determined to use to its utmost every ounce of skill and sinew in its possession, the elevens of the University of Michigan and the University of Minnesota from office. His ball has been fixed at $10, lined up against each other on Ferry Field this afternoon to decide the western foot ball championship.

Long before the hour for calling the game, 2 o'clock, Ferry Field began to fill, and half an hour before the game began the bleachers were filled and every foot of Mints Are Now Closed to Free Coinage standing room taken. > Going Hydraulic Dredge-Army Engineers Interested.

Under the terms of the river and harbor act of 1899 a project was adopted by the War Department for making an entrance to New York harbor by way of Ambrose channel, formerly known as East channel, to be 2,000 feet wide and 40 feet deep at mean be done under a continuing contract at a cost not exceeding $4,000,000. It involves this channel was 16 feet at mean low water, the shoalest part being the outer bar. At that time the channel was used only by towboats and scows and other light-draft

Progress of the Work. In his latest annual report General Gillespie, chief of engineers, says that up to July 1 last the sum or $402,436 had been expended in excavating for about a mile in length on the outer bar.

He added that no result useful to navigation will be obtained until the cuts are carried through the outer bar, which is about two miles long. The available depth at the time of the last report was about sixteen feet at mean low water on the shoal not yet dredged. He also made the significant statement that the entire cost of the im-provement of New York harbor up to plate is less than three-quarters of 1 per cent of the increase in the annual value of foreign commerce of the port since the improve-ment began, and is less than one-quarter of 1 per cent of the value of present foreign commerce per year.

At the earnest solicitation of the representatives of the commercial interests at New York, the army engineers are using their best endeavors to expedite the work on Ambrose channel, as it recognized that under existing conditions it will take at least ten years of unimpeded dredging to make the channel navigable for deep-draft ocean-going vessels. It is conceded that the contractor is meeting all the require-ments of his contract, and that he is employing all the possible available ma-work, General Gillespie has recommended hereby notified that the contagious disease the army transports he transformed into a sea-going hydraulic dredge for special use in dredging operations on this project.

As the most available vessel for that purpose, General Gillespie has named the transport McClellan, which is due at New York in a few days from a trip to the Philippines, by way of the Mediterranean and Suez canal. This recommendation is made in recognition of the fact that the contractor cannot be required to increase his plant for the work and the further fact that the McClellan is the only transport on the Atlantic coast available for the Similar action was taken in the case of the transport Grant of the Pacific service, which was turned over to the engineer department for conversion into a hydrauite dredge for use in the extensive operations for the improvement of the mouth of the Columbia river.

Opposed to the Transfer.

The officers of the quartermaster's department of the army are said to oppose the proposed transfer of the McClellan to the engineer department on the general ground that the vessel is needed in the transport service, and that even if she is not needed for a return trip to the Philippines she should be kept in constant readiness for emergency service on the Atlantic coast, It is expected that the matter will be settled by Secretary Root in a few days.

JAMES H. BOYD INDICTED.

Superintendent of Public Works in Honolulu Under Ugly Charges.

VICTORIA, B. C., November 27.-The steamer Aorangi reached port last night. She brought news from Honolulu that James H. Boyd, superintendent of public Friends of Aspirants Active in Securworks, and his chief clerk were indicted on November 18 at Honolulu on the charge of stealing government funds. Three indictments, containing five counts, were brought against Boyd, charging him with embezzling about $4,000 in the aggregate. There are two indictments against Wright, charging him with stealing $8,000.

The senate is to meet in extra session and it is expected that Boyd will be relieved 000. The grand jury is still in session, and other indictments in connection with the scandals in public office may be returned.

ALARMING PREVALENCE OF FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE.

Secretary Wilson Issues Orders Forbidding the Export of the Animals From the Infected Territory.

Secretary Wilson of Agriculture today issued a sweeping order directed to the managers and agents of railroads and transportation companies of the United States, stockmen and others, notifying them of the establishment of a quarantine low water. The work was authorized to of cattle, sheep and other ruminants and swine in the New England states, and prohibiting the exportation of such animals from the port of Boston until further

Recent investigations by the Department of Agriculture disclosed the fact that what is known as foot and mouth disease exists to an alarming extent in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Vermont. The expert of the department, Dr. Mohler; Dr. Leonard Pearson of the University of Pennsylvania and Dr. James Law of Cornell visited the infected districts and united in a recommendation that in order to prevent the spread of the disease quarantine should immediately be estab-

Secretary Wilson said today that this is the most serious matter the department has had to handle for some time, but that al! the resources of the department would be employed in stamping out the disease. He declared that if it should spread west of the Hudson river it would be nothing short of a national calamity.

Orders to Transportation Companies. The orders which are dated today and numbered 99 and 100, respectively, are as follows:

"To the Managers and Agents of Railroads and Transportation Companies of the United States, Stockmen and Others:

"In accordance with section 7 of the act of Congress approved May 29, 1884, entitled, 'An act for the establishment of a bureau of animal industry, to prevent the exportation of diseased cattle, and to provide means for the suppression and extirpation of pleuro-pneumonia and other contagious diseases among domestic animais, and with the act of Congress apknown as foot and mouth disease exists among animals in the states of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Vermont, and that the cattle, sheep and other ruminants and swine of said states have been exposed to the contagion of said disease; therefore,
"It is hereby ordered. That to prevent the setts and Vermont into other states or foreign countries, and to aid in its eradication, no cattle, sheep or other ruminants, or swine shall be moved or be permitted to move from or across the territory of any one of the states above named into any other state or foreign country. Any person, company or corporation violating this order will be proceeded against as provided for by the act of Congress above referred to.

"It is hoped that all transportation companies, cattle shippers and others interested in the welfare of our animal indus-try will co-operate with the Department of Agriculture in enforcing this order, to the end that the restriction on traffic may have the desired effect and be removed in the shortest possible time.

"JAMES WILSON, (Signed) "Secretary." "Whereas a highly contagious disease, known as foot and mouth disease, exists among cattle in the state of Massachusetts, and the routes of transportation possibly may have been contaminated, and in order to protect the export trade in live animals by preventing the exportation of animals which are diseased or which have been exposed to disease,

"It is hereby ordered, That no cattle, sheep or other ruminants or swine shall be permitted to be exported from the port of Boston until further orders.

THE DISTRICT ATTORNEYSHIP. ing Indorsements.

Although surface indications denoted a calm by reason of this being a holiday. much in the way of active work was quietly done today in the matter of furthering the interests of the several candidates for appointment as United States attorney for the District of Columbia. The friends of those who hope to secure the office were busy securing indorsements and otherwise endeavoring to add to the chances of their candidates for success. Another careful canvass of the field this afternoon developed that the list from which the selection will in all probability be made includes the names of Messrs. D. W. Baker, Chas. Maurice Smith, Tracy L. Jeffords, E. H. Thomas, Hugh T. Taggart and Andrew B. Duvall. The name of Mr. Duvall is the latest to be suggested as an addition to the list. A lawyer who is closely associated with him remarked today: "Several of the lead-ing members of the bar have approached name to be used in connection with the United States attorneyship. Because of recent successes in several important civil cases in which the govern-ment was deeply interested Mr. Duvall is highly regarded by the officials of the De-partment of Justice. Although personally he is not making a fight, it would not surprise me in the least to hear that he had been selected to succeed Mr. Gould."

In behalf of Mr. Baker it was argued today that merely because he owns a small farm in Maryland and spends part of his time there is no reason why it should be even intimated that he is not a full-fledged District man. It is explained that Mr. Baker's entire professional career has been at the local bar.

A statement to the effect that Mr. Jeffords had withdrawn from the contest for United States attorney is emphatically denied by his friends, who say they are unable to understand from what source the statement originated. "The gratifying support Mr. Jeffords is will be announced tomorrow, or Saturday, at the latest.

Committee as to Bureaus to Make the Department of Commerce-White House Ready for Functions.

The White House executive offices were deserted today, and everything was so quiet around the President's official quarters that one of the White House cats was tempted to spend the day watching holes and crevices in different rooms. Although the building is new, mice have made their appearance, and the cat on duty today has caught several of the botnersome little rodents at yarious times. The cat spent most of the day in the press room, watching for possible arrivals through a small hole in that room President Roosevelt did not go to his office during the morning hours, and instead went with Mrs. Roosevelt and a party of friends and relatives for a long ride outside of the city. The party left the White House in carriages before 11 o'clock, and the understanding was that their horses were in waiting in the suburbs, from which they would depart on a long horseback journey, not to return until the luncheon hour in the afternoon. The party consisted of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Gen. Leonard Wood, Elliott Roosevelt, Douglas Robinson, the Presi-dent's brother-in-law, and Robert H. M. Ferguson, who served with the President in the Rough Riders.

Another party for a horseback ride left the White House just before 10:30 o'clock. This consisted of Civil Service Commis-sioner John R. Proctor, Master Archie Roosevelt and Miss Ethel Roosevelt. Mas-ter Archie rode his calies Shetler by and wore a hig sombress that gave him the and wore a big sombrero, that gave him the and worse a big sombleto, that gave inin the appearance of a miniature cowboy in full harness. A Department Committee.

The President has requested the heads of departments to designate one man from each department to form a committee to confer with a subcommittee of the interstate and foreign commerce committee of the House as to the best bureaus to be incorporated under the preposed new de-partment, which the President desires to see established as soon as possible. Representative Hepburn, chairman of the comfor the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903, you are department as by right of official relationship belong there, and to see that those that do not belong there remain in their present departments. The departmental committee will be questioned by the subcommittee as to the functions and duties of certain bureaus that are in contemplaspread of the said disease from the states of Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachumerce.

The Delaware Mix-Up.

President Roosevelt's official statement that his reappointment of Michael Byrne as United States attorney of Delaware was a personal one with him entirely and had nothing to do with recognizing the Addicks faction in that state, has put the Delaware factions to guessing again. The reappointment of Mr. Byrne, who had been the Addicks candidate for Congress in Delaware, was construed everywhere as a recognition of the union republicans, and provoked severe criticism. The official statement leaves the question of patronage just where it was before Mr. Byrne was given back his old position, which he resigned several months ago to make the race for Congress.

The administration must devise some plan of distributing the patronage that will do of distributing the patronage that will do away with the idea of favoring one or the other of the factions. For a year or more the administration recognized Representative Ball as the dispenser of Delaware plums solely because he was the only congressional representative of any kind from Delaware. Mr. Ball was defeated in the November elections, and a democrat will take his place. Governor Hunn of Delaware recently had interviews with the President and Postmaster General Payne about the patronage, and the belief pre-valled that he would be allowed to make the recommendations. His connection with the gas magnate, Addicks, would, however, mean that the patronage would go to that faction.

The probability is strong that the administration will withhold Delaware appointments until the legislature of that state meets in January and decides what it will do about the two senatorships. If the democrats and anti-Addicks republicans unite and divide the two senatorships one to each party, there would be a republican senator from the state, who would naturally claim the patronage, regardless of the fact that he had been electedly largely by demoeratic votes. It is not believed that the two republican factions have the slightest expectation of getting together and electing two senators of republican faith. The com-bination most looked for is between the lemocrats and anti-Addicks republicans and a division of the senatorships.

To Be Ready for Receptions.

Superintendent French, the representative of Norcross Bros., contractors for the rejuvenation of the White House, says that the work is getting along so well that there will be no interference with the program of social function this winter. The entire work on the White House will be practically complete by January I, and so little will remain at that time as not to disarrange any of the social plans. A good many workmen were busy on the interfer of the White House todal and a still larger number worked on the east terrace. The large ber worked on the east terrace. The large room under this terrace is to be used as a cloak room during the winter receptions and will also be the entrance of guests to the receptions and dinners. Work has been supplied on it for some time. rushed on it for some time.

Some exterior and interior painting may have to be done after January I, but within another month the contractors expect to have all work about closed up.

Has Not Been Turned Down. There is excellent authority today for the statement that President Roomwelt has not informed Dr. W. D. Crum that he will not appoint him as collector of customs at Charleston because of charges filed against the leading applicant for the position. The allegation has been made that Dr. Crum went to the Minneapolis convention instructed by his state convention to vote for Blaine for President, and that on arriving there he voted for Harrison's renomination, thereby placing himself in the attitude of treachery.

It is stated today that the charges against Dr. Crum have been made by Charleston democrats, and that they allege that he was elected a Blaine delegate and changed to Harrison as a result of a deal by which he was later made postmaster.

Dr. Crum and his friends are today procuring facts to disprove this charge and say that there will be no trouble in doing so. They say he was elected a delegate-at-large and was instructed by the convention

He stood for some time on 15th street watching the work cleaning the mammeth pillars on that side of the Treasury building. The pillars have grown dirty with years of all kinds of weather, and the contract was let for cleaning them. This is being done by a new and interesting process. Sand is forced through rubber pipes and out of a nozzle with such pressure that it goes against the columns ike a small stream from a fire engine. Wherever the sand strikes it cuts the dirt more satisfactorily than soap and water manipulated by a half dozen people. Men working the nozzles stand on ladders of the kind used by painters, and apply the stream of sand wherever they desire. CLAIMS OF SAMOAN LOSSES.

Case to Be Presented to King Oscar for Arbitration. The State Department is preparing to present to King Oscar, the arbitrator of the issues between the United States and England on the one side and Germany on the other, growing out of the Samoan troubles of 1899, the second phase of the case, and finds itself in an embarrassing position. The recent decision of King Oscar touched only the principle involved, namely, the liability of the United States and Great Britain for damages sustained by foreigners as a result of the joint naval operations. That having been decided against the United States and Great Britain and in favor of Germany, the next step in order is to prepare and submit to the arbitrator detailed statements of the individual losses. By the terms of the arbitration treaty each of the countries concerned undertook to look after the claims of its own citizens Thus it happens in the case of the United States that the government is in the peculiar position of presenting to the arbitrator for payment the claims of a numbe of American citizens after it had through elaborate argument presented to the ar bitrator by special counsel specifically de-nied liability for any such claims. In other words, then, the State Department is to act in a double capacity in the second stage of the arbitration, for which it is now pre-paring, first submitting a number of claims and then doing its best either to defeat them or reduce them to a minimum.

PROMOTING ENLISTED MEN.

General Order Issued Announcing Department Regulations.

In a general order issued at the War Department today it is provided that to be eligible for candidacy for promotion to commissioned grade a soldier must be "a citizen of the United States, unmarried, not over thirty years of age on the 1st of September following his preliminary examination and of good moral character both before and after enlistment. An applicant but must have been rendered as an officer or an enlisted man in the regular or volun-teer forces, or as a cadet at the Military Academy, unless such cadet was discharged for deficiency in conduct or studies, in which case he will not be entitled to appointment in advance of the graduation of his class. his class. The competitor at the date of his applica-tion must be an enlisted man of the regu-lar army. Applications will be made to de-partment commanders on or before February 1 of each year, and company com-manders in forwarding them will verify the statement of service submitted by enlisted men of their respective commands. An applicant who has passed a departmental board, but has failed to pass the competitive board, may again be examined by the competitive board on proper appli-cation made through department headquar-ters. He will not be required to pass departmental board a second time. An appli-cant who twice fails in competitive examination to obtain a certificate of eligibility as candidate for promotion cannot again compete for that position.

CLEANING THE TREASURY. The Process May Be Used on the State,

War and Navy Building. In case of the success of the operations for restoring the east front of the treasury building to its original color by the sandblast process it is probable the same method will be employed in cleaning the duststained east front of the State, War and Navy Departments building. The east front of the treasury is built of sandstone, while the newer building is constructed of granite. Although Colonel Bingham, the engineer officer in charge of public buildings and grounds, advocates the use of the sand blast on the east front of the State, War and Navy Departments building, he says it should not be used for cleaning purposes on the other fronts of that building or in the case of any other building.

"It is impossible," said he, "to clean a great building so well that all the stone in it will show a uniform color. The discoloration of age and weather renders a building uniform in appearance, and is not especially objectionable. It is not necessary that our great buildings here should look as though they were built only yesterday."

Looking for a Presidential Candidate.

DEMOCRATS IN SOUTH

NEW YORK'S FAILURE

CAUSES A RECAST OF POLITICAL SENTIMENT.

Expected Judge Parker to Redeem Empire State - Now Inquiring Why He Was Not Nominated.

With the arrival in the city of southern senators and representatives there is heard a renewal of presidential gossip in democratic circles. Events have occurred since the democratic politicians left Washington last summer which have changed the aspect of things and will cause a recasting of political lines.

When the southern democrats trooped homeward at the end of the last session of Congress there was a pretty general understanding of the national political situation. Through the efforts mainly of southern senators, backed up by their colleagues in the House, a crystallization of sentiment adverse to William Jennings Bryan as a prospective presidential candidate has been brought about. All through the winter and spring the anti-Bryan leaven had been working among the men, who, by custom prevailing in the south, are the leaders of political thought in their section.

It was designed that the seeds of dissatisfaction with Bryan should be sown broadcast among the southern democracy by these returning statesmen, and that the minds of the people should be prepared to consider some other candidate.

New York's Failure.

Some of the southern leaders had talked with their party brethren in New York about concert of action between eastern and southern democrats against the populistic element of the western wing of the party. They learned that the New York democrats were hopeful of electing a governor this fall, thereby overturning a republican majority of 117,000 and presaging a complete reversal of political sentiment in the east. They came pretty near doing it. However, as is said in the south, "A miss is as good as a mile." They did not deliver the goods.

At the time those talks were going on the general supposition in New York was that Judge Alton B. Parker would be the democratic nominee for governor. The south-erners were sounded upon his possible fu-ture prospects in case he should carry New York state. Would he be acceptable as a presidential candidate? The answer was affirmative. Judge Parker had not bolted the democratic party in 1896 or 1900 and his record was clean in all respects. If he could wrest New York state from the republicans he would be entirely acceptable to the southerners.

So. when these visiting statesmen came back from New York last winter there was a sudden booming of Judge Parker. In the lobbies of the Capitol and of hotels the gossips were free with his name. To the few to whom it was unfamiliar and who asked "Who is this man Parker?" the answer was pat and ready and in all cases probably proved satisfactory. The Judge Parker Boom.

After the return of the solons to their homes, echoes of the Parker boom in the south came north again. The political correspondents, quick to feel the public pulse, began to write north of a growing sentiment for Parker for the presidential nomination. That encouraged the New York democrats, and the rank and file of the delegates to the state convention went to Saratoga ready to nominate Judge Parker with a swing, if such was the word from the managers.

But there was a slip somewhere in the program. Mr. Hill declares that he did not cause it. Judge Parker's friends vow that the judge was not responsible. Anyhow, the judge was not nominated, and the man who was nominated did not carry the state. while the fact remains that all and many republicans believe Judge Parker would have defeated Governor Odell if he had been nominated.

Now, the southern senators and representatives, the spokesmen of political sentiment in their section, are asking ques-tions about the New York deal. They say they fixed everything all right in the south, and that the southern' democrats are for Parker, but how they are to explain to their people the "turning down" of Judge

Parker in his own state? Allegations of Skullduggery.

The impression seems to be general among them that the failure to nominate Judge Parker was a piece of New York political skullduggery, and there is a disposition to resent it. There is no question that the reaction is in Judge Parker's favor, and that today he is stronger in the south than ever.

Some of the southern politicians declare that Mr. Hill is "done for" in the south, and, of course, is impossible in the west; that Mr. Gorman is popular in the south as ever, where he always has been well liked, but that there would be danger of the west cutting him. Therefore, that a man such as Judge Parker must inevitably, come forward to unite the factions. "We want to get at the bottom of this Parker incident at Saratoga," as one of them expressed it. "We must find out who has the knife in his boot leg before we
